

Our philosophy is that we were given two ears and one mouth for a reason, so our service starts with listening. This is when we learn precisely what it is that you wish your printed literature to achieve. We then go on to discuss budget considerations, the creation of powerful and memorable designs and the length of the eventual print run.

In the meantime, we will help you explore all the options - for instance, digital printing may be a practical solution for shorter runs or even just the one item. We can produce high quality digital prints with a fast turn-around time to meet your needs.

This could include flyers, business cards, booklets, posters and many other types of promotional material.

Other important issues that it's essential to get right include photographs, tints and graphics; the accurate reproduction of corporate colours; deadlines and delivery; and all the other responsibilities that PDC Copyprint can look after on your behalf. After all, your reputation is on the line. And so is ours.

Our print specialist has over 20 years experience in the print trade, therefore it's safe to say you are in good hands.
